

TSL Strengthens Senior Management Team

TSL has announced a multi-tier reorganisation of its senior management team. TSL Co-Founder and industry stalwart David MacGregor will become Chairman, in order to take an overview role within the company and additionally to monitor industry trends and opportunities for further development of TSL.

David Phillips moves from CEO to Managing Director and will continue to lead the overall management of the company.

David Webber joins TSL from Red Bee Media as Chief Operating Officer. Webber comes to TSL from Red Bee Media where he was Head of Technology Delivery. At TSL, Webber will be responsible for general broadcast operations and management, providing additional depth and resource for TSL's ever growing business. He reports to TSL Managing Director David Phillips.

Julian Knight has been promoted to Chief Technology Officer, a position that encompasses the management of key projects for TSL's Systems business, with new and additional responsibility for the technical direction of TSL Professional Products.

Chris Exelby and Rupert Bentley, General Manager of TSL Professional Products and TSL Finance Director respectively, are appointed as Directors of TSL, joining the above.

According to Phillips: "It is important that TSL has in place a management team, with both strength and depth, to maintain and further enhance our position as a leading global Systems Integrator and in parallel allow our Professional Products Group to further expand its successful range. These appointment are strong evidence of our commitment to our future and that of our many customers worldwide."

All appointments are effective immediately.
